

Participants pose for a photo on the North South University campus after its Department of Media Communication and Journalism organises undergraduate orientation programme for Spring 2026 on Tuesday. — Press release

NSU media department welcomes freshers

Staff Correspondent

THE Department of Media Communication and Journalism of North South University organised its undergraduate orientation programme for Spring 2026 on the campus on Tuesday.

The orientation was attended by Professor Md Rizwanul Islam, dean, School of Humanities and Social Sciences; SM Rezwan Ul Alam, associate professor and chairperson, Department of Media Communication and Journalism; Rizwan Khair, associate professor and chairperson, Department of Political Science and Sociology, along with all faculty members of DMCJ.

The programme commenced with an address by Professor Md Rizwanul Islam who encouraged the new students to remain open, engaged, and participatory in the School of Humanities and Social Sciences' academic and co-curricular initiatives.

Rizwan Khair underscored the importance of aligning individual interests with industry practices alongside academic learning.

SM Rezwan Ul Alam, highlighted that the key architects of this evolving space would be the critical, ethical, and informed young minds of the day.