

The environmental science and management department of North South University launches a lecture series titled Frontiers in Environmental Thought at the university in Dhaka on Thursday. — Press release

NSU launches 'Frontiers in Environmental Thought' lecture series

Staff Correspondent

THE environmental science and management department of North South University in collaboration with the Earth Club launched a lecture series titled Frontiers in Environmental Thought at the university in Dhaka on Thursday.

The initiative aims to advance contemporary discourse on environmental science, education, and sustainability, said a press release.

The inaugural event was attended by NSU pro-vice-chancellor Professor Nasar U Ahmed and the dean of the school of humanities and social sciences Professor Dipak Kumar Mitra.

Professor emeritus ATM Nurul Amin delivered the keynote address titled Frontier of Environmental Education: Road Less Travelled at the programme.

Drawing on decades of academic leadership, Professor Amin shared insights into the evolution of environmental education, its role in fostering sustainable development and its significance in addressing global environmental crises.

The lecture brought together faculty, researchers, students and alumni.

The event concluded with a commitment from the department and the Earth Club to host future editions of the series to continue inspiring critical thinking on pressing global environmental challenges.