Daily Sun Report, Dhaka

Bashundhara Shuvosangho on Wednesday held an exchange-of-views meeting with members of North South University's (NSU) Social Services Club at the Shuvosangho head office in the capital to engage youth in social welfare, accelerate voluntary activities and strengthen mutual cooperation in humanitarian work.

The meeting was attended by eminent fiction writer, Bashundhara Group Advisor and Shuvosangho Chief Imdadul Haq Milan, Shuvosangho Director Zakaria Zaman, and NSU Social Services Club members Humaira Iqbal Ahona, Taymuna Binte Shams, Nazifa Ulfat Fariha, Tasnia Rahman Afrin, Tanay Paul, Tazim, Fuad and Nabil, among others.

Addressing the meeting, Milan urged students to use their energy for constructive causes, saying young people should work for society and the country alongside their personal goals.

He stressed that helping disadvantaged people and addressing social problems were essential to building a humane society.

Zakaria Zaman said youth-led campus initiatives conveyed a positive message to society and fostered empathy and cooperation among people.

The participants also discussed future cooperation between the two organisations, including joint initiatives on social welfare, public awareness, voluntary activities and youth leadership development.
