

Photographer, journalist, and social activist Shahidul Alam addresses the opening day of a seven-day photo exhibition titled Revolution of Students in Photography under way at the NSU Plaza. — Press release

Revolution of Students in Photography underway at NSU

Staff Correspondent

THE North South University's media, communication, and journalism programme and the NSU TV, Radio, and Digital Lab jointly organised a seven-day photo exhibition titled Revolution of Students in Photography under way at the NSU Plaza.

The exhibition has been organised to reflect the powerful moments captured by the student-mass revolution.

On the opening day on Wednesday, the exhibition was graced by photographer, journalist, and social activist Shahidul Alam, along with author and anthropologist Rehnuma Ahmed, the NSU treasurer and acting pro-vice-chancellor Professor Abdur

Rob Khan, assistant professor Shariful Islam Imshiat, and assistant professor Md Towfique E Elahi, among others.

Shahidul Alam said, 'These photographs are part of the ongoing history. Students have a role to play in this history. Because they have the sense of right and wrong, they have the spirit of protest.'

Pointing out that protest is most relevant and bold when necessary, he said, 'This protest should have taken place when the dictatorial regime was being oppressed. They have become autocrats because of the silence of many.'

Professor Rehnuma Ahmed stated, 'If we do not raise our voices collectively to end discrimination, our dream of building a discrimination-free Bangladesh will remain elusive.'

Tahmid Al Mudassir, one of the coordinators of the anti-discrimination student movement at Dhaka University, said, 'The contribution of women in this movement is outstanding. Their contribution was the most in breaking the curfew and taking to the streets.'