M Emdadul Haque

M Emdadul Haque, professor and chair of the Department of History and Philosophy at North South University, died of cardiac arrest at The United Hospital on Sunday afternoon. He was 67.

His namaz-e-janaza was held at the NSU plaza area on Sunday evening.

After completing his Master's from the University of Waterloo in Canada, M Emdadul Haque joined the teaching profession at Chittagong University in 1982.

He received his PhD from La Trobe University in Melbourne, Australia.

In 2004, he was appointed the founding chairman of the Department of International Relations at Chittagong University. In 2007, he joined BRAC University as chairman of the Institute of Governance Studies.

In 2010, he took over as chairman of NSU's Department of General and Continuing Education. In 2019, he was named chairman of NSU's Department of History and Philosophy.

Emdadul Haque has been involved in teaching at leading public and private universities in the country for the last 38 years. In addition to teaching, he also provided in-depth professional and research training to mid-level and senior civil servants at the leading institutions in the country, including the National Defence College and the Bangladesh Civil Service Administration Academy.

Emdadul Haque's published books include Drugs in South Asia: From the Opium Trade to the Present, Transparency, Openness, and Ethics in Public Governance, Colonial Drug Trade in South Asia: from Palashi to Partition, and Comparative Political Systems. The Politics: Basic Understanding, Madokashakti: Jatio O Bishwa Poriprekhhit, Comparative Political Analysis.

His research was also featured in national and international journals.

NSU vice-chancellor professor Atiqul Islam expressed deep shock at the death of professor Emdadul Haque.
